Funeral for Pres. Kimball set Saturday

CARMA HOYNACKI
Senior Reporter

Leadership of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints continued without interruption Wednesday with the Council of the Twelve presiding over the funeral arrangements made for President Spencer W. Kimball. The 90-year-old church leader died at 9:48 p.m. Tuesday of causes incited to his age.

Funeral services, which will be viewed via satellite to more than 90 chapels in the United States and Canada, are scheduled for 10 a.m. Saturday in the 6,500-seat Tabernacle Temple Square in downtown Salt Lake City.

A public viewing of the body is set for Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. in the main foyer of the church administration building.

On-campus services at BYU will be held from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, allowing the BYU family to attend the funeral, said BYU President Jeffrey R. Holland. "This is done out of respect for President Kimball," said Ezra Taft Benson is sustained the new prophet following the funeral, the presiding power of the church lies with the Council of the Twelve.

Contrary to what some church members assume, the church "is nevertheless one second without a president," said Wilson K. Anderson, U of Utah professor of religion.

Vilson said there are four events to occur automatically when the president of the church dies.

First, the First Presidency is automatically dissolved. Wilson quoted Eph Smith as saying, "Where I am, there is no presidency of the church of Twelve."

Second, the counselors are released. If they were members of the Council of Twelve, they automatically go back to their position in the church.

The Council can have more than 12 members as a Council and it can have less than 12 and function as a Council. That's happened repeatedly," he said.

Third, the Council itself is automatically the presiding quorum or council of the church.

And fourth, the Council already has a president, whom the members of the church have previously sustained. Immediately the church has a presiding officer.

Vilson quoted an address by Bruce McConkie at BYU on Jan. 8, 1974. McConkie told the story of President Kimball's passing.

At the moment he passed, Brother (G.) Romney, in harmony with the system and the established custom of the church, spoke as president, and President Spencer Kimball was then in complete charge and had total direction. President Kimball was at that moment the apostle of God on earth. And as the last heartbeat of President Lee ceased, the mantle of leadership passed to President Kimball, whose next heartbeat was that of the living oracles and presiding authority of God on earth. From that moment the church continued under the direction of President Kimball.

President Reagan expresses sorrow at prophet's death

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ronald Reagan and Vice President George Bush expressed sorrow Wednesday at the death of Spencer W. Kimball, who, as president of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, presided over dramatic growth and change in the 5.8 million-member church.

Reagan issued a statement saluting President Kimball's "long and full life devoted to his church and the service of his fellow man."

"As a young man, he combined a dedication to work with the new prophet following the death of the late President Kimball, the presiding power of the church lies with the Council of the Twelve."

"Nancy and I note with sorrow the passing of one of the important figures of our generation. Our deepest sympathy goes out to his wife and family."

Bush said, "I want to extend my deepest sympathies to the family of Spencer Kimball and to all the members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. His wisdom and spiritual strength have guided the church during its greatest period of growth. We will miss his vision and insight."

In this same fashion, President Ezra Taft Benson, the 86-year-old senior member of the Council of the Twelve, has assumed nominal leadership of the church pending his sustaining by the Council to succeed President Kimball.

"After the funeral, the Twelve will meet and select a new president. The procedure, and it has been true in the past and in every instance, is that the senior member is selected president of the church," said church spokesman Don LeFevre.

In an address in Jan., 1968, President Lee said, "The brethren have declared time and time again that the only way that one other than the president of the Twelve could be president of the church would be that the president of the Twelve could receive a revelation from the Lord designating someone else to act in his stead. That, I firmly believe, it has always been so, and in my judgement it will always continue to be so."

Joe Jenkins celebrates his victory with supporters after Tuesday's election. Current mayor James Ferguson wished to clarify some of his remarks reported by a wire service on Wednesday about the campaign. There were hints that Ferguson's defeat may have been partially caused by letters written by LDS officials.

Mayor James Ferguson responds to comments made in wire article

By MARK FLETCHER
Senior Reporter

In the aftermath of Tuesday's election, Mayor James Ferguson said he would like to clear up the controversy surrounding his remarks about a letter-writing campaign waged against him.

The controversy started Tuesday night and Wednesday morning when a story went over the United Press International wire news service. The story was so worded that it indicated Ferguson had charged local authorities of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints with directing their members to vote against him.

The reference in the article concerned a mailing list used for the campaign. "Someone obviously used a church mailing list," said Ferguson. In virtually every case a past LDS stake president or bishop signed it, he said. "It was signed by three people."

The similarities between these letters and official letters from the church are obvious, but the letter was not on the letterhead of the church and the local authorities of the church denied any official involvement with the campaign, Ferguson said.

The story that went over the wire service was somewhat misleading, said Ferguson. "I have since cleared that up with the wire service. Certainly they did some harm."

Actually every case a past LDS stake president or bishop signed it, he said. "It was signed by three people."

The similarities between these letters and official letters from the church are obvious, but the letter was not on the letterhead of the church and the local authorities of the church denied any official involvement with the campaign, Ferguson said.

The story that went over the wire service was somewhat misleading, said Ferguson. "I have since cleared that up with the wire service. Certainly they did some harm."

When asked if an earlier announcement of Provo's new mail would have made a difference in the outcome of the election, Ferguson said it would have been nice, but "until they made the land purchase we couldn't do anything. We would have had an opportunity to challenge the statements of the political aspects of it."

The announcement of the new mail only days before the election left some wondering if it was merely a political move by Ferguson to help out his campaign.

"We don't have the strength to bring some guy in from Kentucky to spend $20 million to buy a new mail," Ferguson said. "It's just one of those things you can't control."

Y community mourns leader's death

Students express feelings about prophet's passing

By JOEL CAMPBELL
Universe Staff Writer

For some BYU students the announcement of President Spencer W. Kimball's death took on a personal dimension because for them, the prophet is the only church president they can remember.

"It was pretty devastating," said Amy Johanson, a freshman from Troy, Mich., majoring in communications. "I took a walk up to the temple with a friend. President Kimball is the only one I can remember."

Rick Lord, a junior from Bountiful, majoring in food service, said President Kimball is the only LDS Church president he has known since becoming active. Though shocked at first, Lord said he knew this announcement would eventually come. "I thought to myself that it was fine — that everything was all right, and the church was entering a new era."

"The entire Brigham Young University family is deeply saddened by and mourns the death of President Spencer W. Kimball."

— Jeffrey R. Holland
— BYU President

Other students felt a sense of relief for the LDS leader who had been in ill health during recent years. "I was sad, but I wasn't really heartbroken. He has a lot of things to do where he has gone," said Amber Valora, a senior from Austin, Texas, majoring in zoology.

Blake Willis, a junior from Arco, Idaho majoring in agronomy, said he was profoundly affected by President Kimball's "great example of love for everybody."

In a prepared statement, BYU President Jeffrey R. Holland said, "The entire Brigham Young University family is deeply saddened by and mourns the death of President Spencer W. Kimball. His age and failing health do not make his passing entirely unexpected but we still feel a great sense of loss."

Holland said the result of President Kimball's "untiring efforts" include expanded missionary work for the LDS Church, increased temple building, new scripture added to the standard works and the extension of priesthood to all worthy males regardless of race.

CASPAR W. WEINBERGER, U.S. Secretary of Defense will speak in the de Jong Concert Hall of the Harris Fine Arts Center Friday at 10 a.m.

Y hosts Weinberger for Friday address

One of most influential men of our time

By MARK FLETCHER
Senior Reporter

Friday at 10 a.m. Brigham Young University will host one of the most influential men of our time, Caspar W. Weinberger, Secretary of Defense, in the de Jong Concert Hall of the Harris Fine Arts Center.

The speech will cover the United States' relationship with the rest of the world. "It will be an academic speech rather than a political one," said Brent Harker of BYU public communications.

Coming as a guest of the David M. Kennedy international studies center it is speculated that he is stopping at BYU because of his relationship with Kennedy.

"The David M. Kennedy center asked him to come," said Harker. "He has been acquainted with Kennedy and thought it would be a good idea to come. There was a friendship there."

Kennedy was Secretary of the Treasury when Richard M. Nixon was president. This was the time that Weinberger was nominated by Nixon to be the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

Col. Col. Brigham Shuler has ordered the ROTC classes canceled for that time and made it mandatory that all members attend the speech.

President Ronald Reagan nominated Weinberger to be Secretary of Defense on Jan. 20, 1981. He was confirmed by the Senate the same day, and took the oath of office the following day.

Born and raised in San Francisco,

"It will be an academic speech rather than a political one."

Brent Harker
BYU public communications

He served three consecutive terms in the California State Assembly and in 1955 was named the "most able member of the State Legislature" in a poll of California journalists.

While in the Army, Weinberger advanced from the rank of private to captain in four years of service. During that time, he served with the 41st Infantry Division in the Pacific Theater of Operations and as a member of General Douglas MacArthur's intelligence staff.

Weinberger is married to Jane Dalton of Maine and they have two children, a son, Caspar Willard Weinberger, Jr., and a daughter, Arlin Weinberger.

Apartment complex part of Provo Mall

By DEVON ZUMBRENNEN
Universe Staff Writer

Moore Investments is firmly committed to build only a mid-rise apartment complex at the proposed downtown Provo Mall, said a company representative.

Charles Beverage, real estate attorney for the William B. Moore Investment Co., says his company is primarily concerned with the $24 million mid-rise apartment complex which was proposed Saturday. "Our specialty is the building of housing projects," said Beverage.

The attorney said his company is working with several developers about building the proposed commercial retail mall. "We are hoping to induce a developer to look at the project, make his own assessment of the project, and tie the entire project together."

"We are committed to build the 310 mid-rise apartment building," said Beverage. "The studies our people have done and the studies we have seen indicate to us that Provo is a gold mine."

The Saturday announcement proposed a $54 million project to be built on a one square block area north of the Provo Excelsior Hotel and included a mid-rise apartment complex, a mid-rise multi-use commercial building, and a two-level shopping mall.

Pat Ashton with the P.E. Ashton Co., the current owner of the proposed project property, said they have received earnest money from Moore Investment Co. "They have until Dec. 31, 1985 to come up with the bonding needed for the project," said Ashton.

Beverage quoted a city-sponsored study which indicates Provo is a prime location for additional retail stores. "This study indicates that Utah County has one major retail store per one hundred and ten thousand population, whereas Salt Lake City has one major store per fifty thousand," said Beverage.

Local merchant reaction to the proposed mall is mixed. Ron Summer owner of a clothing store said this project is just what Provo needs. "I think it's the right size. Other proposals that I've seen have been too big. They've tried to compete with the University Mall."

"I'm hopeful it will go through," said Doug Pratt, manager of a Center Street shoe store. "Just having it in the downtown area can't help but revitalize the downtown area." Although he said he would welcome the project Pratt said he has to take a "wait and see attitude" concerning the project.

"If it goes, then that will be great, but if it doesn't then it will be just another Heritage Mountain," he said.

When he first heard about the proposal, Richard Bagley, manager of a local finance company, said he thought it was just political hype and still does. "A few years ago there was talk about a mall going in the downtown area, but what has happened to that proposal?" Bagley said he doesn't feel the mall would help his business if it eventually were built.

"At this stage of the process this project is as sure as it can be," said Mike Majewski with the Provo Redevelopment Agency. "All indications show it's going to go."

NEWS DIGEST

Soviet demands dim U.S. summit hopes

WASHINGTON (AP) — American summit hopes have been set back by Soviet demands to halt the "Star Wars" program and by Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's lack of understanding of U.S. policies, a senior Reagan administration official said Wednesday.

"We are dismayed, but we can wait," the official said in summing up 14 hours of talks in Moscow involving Gorbachev, Secretary of State George Shultz, and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze. "The pace of progress was set back by this meeting," the official said in a wrap-up briefing for reporters under rules that barred use of his name. He spoke in Reykjavik, Iceland, where the U.S. party stopped for rest and refueling en route home from Moscow.

In an interview in Washington on Wednesday with correspondents of Western news agencies, Reagan said he would deploy a "Star Wars" missile shield unilaterally if he could not get other world leaders to agree on an international system to defend against nuclear attack.

The president said his comments in an interview last week with Soviet journalists, in which he appeared to make deployment of a Star Wars system contingent on dismantling offensive weapons, were erroneously interpreted.

Asked earlier if he meant, in effect, to give the Soviets veto power over deployment of the proposed defensive weapons system, Reagan replied, "Hell no."

Reagan redefines 'Star Wars' goals

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan redefined his goals for the proposed "Star Wars" missile defense system Wednesday, saying he would deploy the space shield unilaterally if other nuclear powers can not agree on a worldwide nuclear defense and disarmament program.

"If we had a defensive system and we could not get agreement on their part to eliminate the nuclear weapons, we would have done our best and we would go ahead with deployment, even though, as I say, that would then open us up to the charge of achieving the capacity for a first strike," Reagan said in an interview less than two weeks before he meets Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in Geneva.

The president's comments appeared to negate the terms he laid out in an interview with Soviet journalists last week in which he said he would not deploy a defensive system until offensive missiles had been dismantled. But Reagan denied there was any inconsistency in his separate descriptions of his policy.

"The terms for our own deployment would be the elimination of the offensive weapons," Reagan said to the Soviets.

Bomb suspect pleads innocent to charge

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Documents dealer Mark Hofmann, a suspect in two fatal October bombings, pleaded innocent Wednesday to a one-sentence indictment charging him with illegal possession of a machine gun.

A federal grand jury handed up the indictment against Hofmann and an identical charge against his friend and associate, Shannon Patrick Flynn, earlier in the day. Hofmann, seated in a wheelchair, appeared briefly before U.S. Magistrate Ronald Boyce to respond to the charge, which carries a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and a $250,000 fine.

Police said they found an Uzi machine gun which had been converted from semiautomatic to automatic when they searched Flynn's home shortly after Hofmann's car was blown apart by a bomb Oct. 16.

One day earlier, separate bombs hidden in packages killed stockbroker and Mormon bishop Steven Christensen and the wife of his former business partner, Kathy Sheets.

Police said they believed the bomb which injured Hofmann went off accidentally, unlike the first two.

Mine crews remove bodies of 10 miners

ORANGEVILLE (AP) — With the bodies of 10 more coal miners removed from the Wilberg Mine, federal and Emery Mining Corp. officials on Wednesday were studying how to safely retrieve the remaining 12 victims killed in an underground fire last December.

The remains of nine men and one woman were taken to the state medical examiner's office in Salt Lake City shortly after midnight Tuesday for autopsies, said Emery Mining spokesman Bob Henrie.

In all, 15 miners' bodies have been recovered from the mine where 26 men and a woman were trapped by flames Dec. 19. Henrie would not say when the remaining bodies — two have not been located — will be removed from sites deeper within the mine's 5th Right Section.

"At this point, it's impossible to know. They still have to do additional exploration of the access routes to those parts of the mine where the others are located," he said.

Henrie said the 10 were tentatively identified as: Ricc Camberlango, 26, of Price; Owen Curtis, 31, of Price; Brian Howard, 23, of Castle Dale; Naumette Wheeler, 33, of Castle Dale; Lester Walls Jr., 23, of Huntington; Curtis Carter, 29, of Huntington; John Wilsey, 31, of Orangeville; Barry Jacobs, 27, of Castle Dale; Bert Bennett, 37, of Elmore; and John Waldoch, 22, of Huntington.

Judge calls mistrial in Miller spy case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A judge on Wednesday declared a mistrial in the case of Richard W. Miller, the only FBI agent ever charged with espionage, after jurors deadlocked with the majority favoring his conviction.

The foreman of the jury informed U.S. District Judge David Kenyon that after 14 days of deliberations the panel had voted 10-2 for guilt on three of the key espionage charges against Miller and 11-1 on the four other charges.

U.S. Attorney Robert Bonner said the government would seek to try Miller again and would ask that a date for a new trial be set Thursday.

The decision by Kenyon to declare a mistrial capped a chaotic afternoon in which some jurors said they were hopelessly deadlocked and others said they might still be able to reach a verdict.

Kenyon quizzed the jurors about their feelings and one man spoke up saying he would like to try again. But he finally conceded that was his opinion alone and the likelihood of getting a verdict was remote.

National Geographic atlas now available

WASHINGTON (AP) — Its publishers call it "the most riveting look at our continent ever put between covers of a book." Before even one copy was ready, 200,000 had been sold for $29.95 — or $39.95 for the deluxe issue, which comes with a magnifier. The National Geographic Society's "Atlas of North America," unveiled Wednesday, looks at neither mapping nor photography, but does the work of both and better than either.

In addition to containing the familiar maps and illustrations found in conventional atlases, the new one makes heavy use of pictures from space to show not only what the earth below looks like but also what it's made of and how it is being shaped by natural and man-made forces.

At least 35 dead in Atlantic flooding

Health officials voiced concern about contaminated water Wednesday in the wake of devastating floods that killed at least 35 people in the mid-Atlantic states. The governors of Virginia and West Virginia surveyed damage estimated in the hundreds of millions of dollars.

Rivers that crested at record levels were returning to their banks in many areas, but Richmond braced for a surge on the James River and sandbagging continued at historic sites around Washington, D.C., in anticipation of a Potomac River crest up to 7 feet above flood stage.

World arms spending to go up $60 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — World military spending will reach $800 billion this year — $60 billion more than last year — continuing a post-World War II weapons buildup at the cost of social programs, a report by arms control advocates said Wednesday.

The United States and the Soviet Union, with 11 percent of the world's population, account for more than half the military spending, the report said.

POLICE BEAT

Burglaries — A series of recent burglaries Provo may be connected, said Provo police. One incident cash totaling $142 was taken in the Cochman Restaurant at 175 N. 200 West Provo, sometime between Tuesday night and Wednesday morning, said Provo police. There were no suspects in the case.

The Wide Tires store was also burglarized Tuesday afternoon and $75 cash was taken from a drawer, said police officials. Investigators are looking for a male Hispanic suspect between the ages of 18 and 20 in connection with the burglary. Police said the manager noticed when the suspect entered the store, but was helping another customer. He said he assumed the suspect was looking tires. Shortly after the suspect left, the manager noticed the cash was missing, said police.

In a separate incident, carpet valued at $50 was taken from an auto parked at 1720 N. 728 West Provo. Apparently the car was not locked, said Provo police. The incident took place on Oct. 6, but was not reported until Tuesday.

Provo police said an automobile battery valued at $40 was taken from a car located at 1380 S. University Ave. on Monday. Damages to the car were estimated at $25.

A skateboard valued at $80 was apparently stolen from a car parked at 4509 N. Norfolk Provo, said Provo police.

Police said it is very possible that the burglaries are connected.

Shuttle returns to earth with crew of scientists

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) Challenger coasted onto a desert runway Wednesday after a science mission flown by a record crew of eight and researchers promptly began study five of the astronauts to see how they re-adapted to gravity.

The space shuttle and its crew of five American two West Germans and a Dutchman touched down at 12:45 p.m. EST on a dry lakebed after a 7-d 45-minute mission in which it orbited the Earth times and traveled more than 3 million miles.

Professor to give last address

With retirement just around the corner, Paul R. Cheesman, a professor of ancient scripture, will present his last major public address as a BYU professor tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the JSB Auditorium.

Cheesman's topic "Are Archaeological Evidences Necessary?" will focus on the importance of external evidences to the Book of Mormon. Another Testament of Jesus Christ. His research, with emphasis on ancient American studies relating to the Book of Mormon, has taken him around the world. He has established himself as a leader in the field of external evidences of the Book of Mormon through international research and publications.

"In terms of studying culture, lands, societies and archaeological artifacts relating to the Book of Mormon, no one has done more than he has," said Alan Parrish, an assistant professor of ancient scripture.

Change necessary for progression, says Eder Simpson at conference

Change is just as real and just as necessary as life itself, said Eder Simpson, a member of the first Quorum of Seventy of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in an address to BYU students during the "Spheres of Influence" conference Wednesday.

"Without change there would be no progress, there would be no better arrows, there would be no eternal progression," he said.

Change should be based on light and truth, which is the same yesterday, today and forever, he said. "God the Creator is the only source that can be depended upon totally and without failure."

Eder Simpson gave five guidelines for dealing with change. First, be unselfish when making changes. "Changes made for selfish reasons usually result in a step downward," he said. Worthy church members are able to make and handle change better when the Lord comes first and they are serving others.

Second, be positive about the changes that come. The Lord will not accept fence-sitters, he said. "We could eliminate half the problems of the world if we could eliminate changes made by default."

Face change with eagerness. "Man must keep searching. Man must keep reaching. Man must never give up the quest," he said.

Courage is also important in handling change. Citing many positive changes in the church's progress in foreign countries, Eder Simpson attributed these to courage and faith on the part of church members.

Five-week training course teaches defense methods

GROTON, Conn. (AP) — For the first time, security guards at the Electric Boat shipyard in Groton are being trained to carry weapons to protect the defense plant from attacks and break-ins.

Fifteen of the plant's 100 guards are taking a five-week, in-house training program. The will become part of the Armed Response Force in use during all three shifts, Electric Boat spokesman Vincent T. Malcolm said Tuesday.

"Their primary mission is to prevent unauthorized entry into the shipyard and to protect life and property," he said.

Navy and congressional officials have often discussed armed security at the shipyard. Their concerns were heightened in 1982 after several anti-nuclear weapons protesters broke into the shipyard and damaged several Trident nuclear submarines.

Malcolm said the guards' training includes self-defense.

Ballot wins for gun control and smoke-free workplaces

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Voters approved ballot measures affirming gun control and the right to abortions and to smoke-free workplaces, but three communities rejected attempts to fluoridate their water and Seneca residents refused to limit downtown high-rise construction.

Given in an off-year election, voters in nine counties and scores of cities and towns grappled with lot issues that touched on some of the nation's hot emotion-laden economic and social questions.

Three New England towns — Bristol, Conn.; Dover, N.H.; and Derry, N.H. — rejected similar-worled measures Tuesday calling for the overhauling of the U.S. Supreme Court's 12-year-old ruling that legalized abortions.

It was the first time since the high court ruling, says Wade, that voters had the chance to vote on referendums.

Oak Park, Ill., one of four U.S. cities that have banned handguns, beat back a proposal to repeal its 13-month-old ban. The other city with similar handgun laws are Washington, D.C.; Morton Grove, Ill.; and Evanston, Ill.

Tucson, Ariz., voters passed a proposition restricting smoking in workplaces, and another one limiting the size and location of billboards. But they defeated a measure that would have required smoke-free space in restaurants.

Fluoridation failed badly in three cities. San Antonio, Texas, narrowly turned back a proposal to fluoridate the city's water supply, making it the second largest city without fluoride in its water after Los Angeles. Westfield and Leominster, both in Massachusetts, also rejected fluoridation.

"People feel the time has come to decrease the amount of additives in our drinking water and they are increasingly demanding a say in issues such as fluoridation," said Susan Pare, president of the Center for Health Action, based in Springfield, Mass.

Graduates in Business & Related Fields

Equitec Properties Company is one of the nation's fastest growing real estate syndicators. We didn't achieve this success by hiring candidates with average abilities and limited potential. Instead, we look for people who are exceptions to the rule—and in this case, exceptional business graduates interested in stepping into our winners circle of high achievers.

And that's why we keep coming back to BYU. To date, we have recruited more individuals from BYU than any other campus in the country. And several of these alumni are now senior-level executives with us.

However, to keep the record straight, we're not just interviewing on campus merely because we have a lot of successful alumni on board with us. We're here because everytime we interview at BYU we encounter some of the most ambitious and talented candidates in the country.

Individuals in business, accounting, finance and economics who are high-spirited, intelligent, team-oriented and success-minded.

If you're interested in our nationwide opportunities in Property Management, Acquisitions Analysis, or Real Estate Analysis, you may discover, as many BYU grads already have, that Equitec Properties Company is the place to be.

Cougars outscore Cowgirls

BYU's Jill Sanders spikes the ball against a Wyoming opponent. The Cougars branded the Cowgirls in four games Wednesday.

By SUSAN FUGE
Universe Sports Writer

BYU's women spikers rounded up the Wyoming Cowgirls for the second time this season with scores of 15-12, 15-4, 9-15, 15-12 on Wednesday. "We played good defense tonight, you have to dig, you have to dig and we did a good job," BYU coach Elaine Michaelis said.

Both teams played excellent defense, several times the Cougars seemed to have the ball down only to have the Wyoming defense give it back to them again. BYU had 59 defensive digs for the match while Wyoming had 30.

Setter Tami Hamilton led the team with 18 digs, Corinne Russell had 12 and Socorro Leal contributed nine.

Michaelis said she felt the team served and hit aggressively in the first two games and recovered its aggressive stance in the fourth. "We tend to withdraw when we're in trouble," Michaelis said.

Dylann Duncan said when she feels the lack of intensity on the Cougar side of the court she tells Hamilton, "Set me, I'm going to kill it." Duncan acknowledged that the recovery has to come from the team as a whole and not just one player.

Sari Virtanen led in kills with a total of 19. Duncan followed with 18 and Jill Sanders 13.

The Cougars had 15 ace serves from a combined team effort. Virtanen had four, Marilissa Salmi and Russell each contributed three, Hamilton and Leal each scored two service aces and Sanders had one.

The first game was a fight for both teams. BYU led until the Cowgirls, down 5-2, picked up the momentum and brought the score up to 7-11 in their favor. A time out by BYU broke the surge and the Cougars brought the score to 14-12. The serve was exchanged six times before BYU scored the final point.

BYU kept the Cowgirls on the run in game two and Wyoming never could mount any kind of an attack.

Wyoming gained a 7-2 lead in the third game while BYU was getting used to changes in the lineup. Once the Cougars got warmed up the team quickly tied the score at 7-7 but Wyoming kept BYU down and finished the game.

Y 'California dreaming' on final soccer road trip

By KATHLEEN DRUMMOND
Universe Sports Writer

A six-game winning streak follows the BYU men's soccer team into its final two games of the regular season as the Soccercats travel to California this weekend.

On Nov. 7, BYU — with a season record of 14-7-3 — plays at Cal-State Northridge, sporting a 15-3 record.

The Matadors are ranked No. 1 in Division II and clinched the California Collegiate Athletic Association title last weekend with an 8-2 conference record.

On Nov. 9, the Cougars will play at Cal-State Fullerton.

The Titans are ranked seventh in the West Coast rankings.

The Soccercats could qualify for post-season play depending on the outcome of these two games.

There are 23 teams in the post-season tournament.

Of the 23 selected teams, two teams are chosen from each of the eight regions and the remaining seven are at-large selections.

The first round of post-season play is scheduled for completion by Nov. 18.

Injuries continue to plague Coach Jim Dusa's squad.

Joseph Ngassa and George Onen did not return for much action in last week's play following several weeks of absence.

However, Dusa says Ngassa appears to be healthier than Onen and he expects both to make the road trip.

Dragisha Ignjatovic injured his back last week in practice and is doubtful for weekend play.

Cesar Cantoso, the team's leading scorer, pulled a hamstring in last Saturday's 11-3 victory over Grand Canyon College, but is expected to see action.

Yearbook tabs Spaulding, BYU as HCAC's best

The BYU women's basketball team and Cougar center Tresa Spaulding have been rated the best in the High Country Athletic Conference this year, said the Women's Basketball Yearbook in its 1985-86 NCAA Division I preseason publication.

The HCAC defending champion Cougars were named the favorite to win the HCAC title again this season, and only New Mexico State was listed as an "other contender."

Spaulding, already selected by the Yearbook as one of 12 "probable" All-Americans, is named the HCAC's best player.

Other top players named are Michele Hoppes of Wyoming, Jeanette Easter of New Mexico State, Winifred Foster of New Mexico and Charris Brimmond of Utah State.

Bears' Ditka enjoys positive image

CHICAGO (AP) — Has success forged a new image for Mike Ditka?

It was a question put to the man now in his fourth and most successful year as Chicago Bears coach.

Ditka bit his lip, allowed himself a quick smile and replied: "I'm glad it wasn't (the old) Mike out there (Sunday, when the Bears defeated the Green Bay Packers 16-10 in a mistake-filled, brawl beset contest.) That Mike would have been awfully excited for a while."

The questioner persisted. Was there a new or different Mike off the field?

"I don't drive the highways as much," said Ditka, referring to a much-publicized arrest in Chicago for driving under the influence of alcohol following a victory over San Francisco last month. "That's for sure."

Secure because he already has been awarded a second three-year contract, buoyed by success and hailed recently as something of an innovator, Ditka can afford to lampoon his new image. He can afford to be restrained. He is winning.

It was not always so. Ditka was an All-Pro tight end during his first stay with the Bears, but he came back to Chicago four years ago as an untested Dallas assistant coach. His selection by Chicago's owner, the late George Halas, was said to reveal more about Halas' sense of loyalty than Ditka's acumen.

But the Bears' 1984 march to the National Football Conference title game — they were derailed by San Francisco 23-0 — and their 9-0 performance so far this year — including the mild revenge that came with beating the 49ers — has silenced most of those critics.

It has also changed Ditka from a coach who two years ago took out his frustrations on a locker in Baltimore, breaking his hand, to one who has learned to live with everyone's shortcomings, including his own.

"I think he's reached a point where he can have confidence in his players and the abilities of this team," said defensive lineman Dan Hampton, a tough All-Pro player in the Ditka mold. "I really think he came here and tried to get too involved in every facet of the game... maybe part of it because he was new," Hampton continued. "But now he understands we're professionals, and he lets us play our game."

Over-achiever Smith surpasses obstacles

By FRANK MONTROYA Jr.
Staff Sports Editor

As a freshman walk-on in 1980, Kelly Smith's desire was to make the BYU football team. Since then, the senior from Beaver, Utah, has made a career of overcoming the odds and accomplishing the impossible.

"After high school, I just wanted to try college football," he said. "I figured, if I got a chance I could try."

A lifelong Cougar fan, Smith chose BYU as the only place to test his football-playing mettle.

"While most of the state's junior colleges were interested in me, I felt if I was going to tryout, it might as well be with the best school in the state," he said.

Smith's outstanding senior year at Beaver High School, highlighted by participation on a 12-0 football team that was scored on only four times all year, interested BYU enough to invite him to fall practice.

"I really thought I was finished when I hurt (my knee), this time. But as it responded to therapy, I began to think maybe I could play again."

— Kelly Smith

"As soon as I got here, I knew I could make the team," he said. "I wasn't intimidated. I knew I could play against anybody."

A wide receiver his freshman year, Smith saw considerable action with the junior varsity. "I really liked it," he said. "It was an invaluable experience."

Apparently, his coaches thought so, too. After a season ended, they offered him a scholarship for six years.

After a mission to Florida, Smith returned to BYU in time to redshirt the 1982 season.

"It was hard, but I knew I'd get my chance," he said.

Weekend tourney to open season for BYU bowlers

By ERIC GOODSELL
Universe Sports Writer

Head Coach Shafter Bown thinks his BYU 1985-86 bowling team will go far if they live up to their potential.

The season starts Nov. 8-9 at the BYU Invitational.

"I have a lot of confidence in the team," he said. "I'm confident that we can win it."

At least 16 teams from the West will be competing in the tourney, scheduled to start Friday morning, including powerhouses University of Arizona and Northern Arizona University. Locals Utah State, University of Utah and Weber State are also expected to attend.

The tournament consists of 12 total games scheduled for each of the five members of a team that will be competing at any one time.

BYU team members include George Ksenics, Ted Holmes, Howard Stone, Larry Hoffman, Jon Robinson, John Peeke, Randy Richards and Brian Merrin. The alternates are Scott Felsted and Jerry Brown.

The eight members and two alternates were chosen from a field of 28. "It was a hard selection to make," Bown said.

Bown is looking for all of the team members to contribute to the success of the team, including Hoffman, who recently bowled a 741 three-game series. "He rolls a good ball," Bown said.

Ksenics led tryouts with a 201 average. Holmes closely followed with a 200. The low average for the team was a 183.

"The team has really looked good in practice," Bown said, praising the members for working hard at scheduled practices and practicing on their own.

said.

During this time, Smith switched positions from wide receiver to defensive back.

"I heard we were short on backs, so I asked the coach if I could switch."

The move was short-lived, however, and Smith soon found his niche in the Cougars' offensive backfield.

"I enjoy it a lot," he said.

A speedster with excellent pass-catching ability, Smith is used with confidence on short and long pass routes.

Against Wyoming last week, for instance, he caught six passes for 108 yards, including a 42-yard touchdown reception on BYU's third play of the game.

Although an almost season-ending knee injury, suffered against UCLA, has limited Smith's rushing output this year to only 61 yards on 19 carries, not enough can be said about the senior running back's durability.

"I really thought I was finished when I hurt it (the knee) this time," Smith said. "But as it responded to therapy, I began to think maybe I could play again."

Wearing a two-pound brace, that is exactly what happened. More than a month after sustaining the injury, Smith saw action against Colorado State.

"It felt great to come back," he said. "Especially, since it was my last year."

Although the idea that the injury may re-occur crosses his mind sometimes, Smith maintains a positive attitude about his situation.

"My knee could lock up again," he said. "But football isn't the only thing there is to life."

After graduating from BYU, Smith hopes to go on to graduate studies in physical therapy. "I'd like to take what I've learned about health and share it with others," he said.

As for playing football professionally, Smith is realistic about a future in the NFL. "If someone were interested in my abilities, I'd consider trying out," he said. "But, I'm not really concerned about playing. My career here has been satisfying enough."

New Jersey, Virginia key battlegrounds as congressmen look to 1986 campaign

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Democrats and Republicans informally inaugurated their 1986 election campaigns on Wednesday, posting early claims of success ahead of off-year balloting produced a day away in New Jersey but a historic knockout sweep in Virginia.

Statewide races aside, several of the nation's big-city mayors savored new terms in municipal elections, including Ed Koch in New York, Coleman Young in Detroit and J. Roy Whitmore in Houston. Miami's sixth Mayor Maurice Ferre was the most able casualty. He ran third behind Raul G. Diago and Xavier Suarez, who square off in runoff election next Tuesday.

Democratic Party chairman Paul G. Kirk hailed moderate Gov.-elect Gerald L. Ford in Virginia as the "profile of a winner," and said accompanying, first-time statewide victories Tuesday by a black and a woman showed a "powerful, historic and positive force."

Noting that President Reagan had campaigned for the losing GOP ticket in Virginia, Kirk said Democrats "need have no fear" of presidential popularity as they bid to win control of the Senate in 1986.

But at the White House, spokesman Larry Speakes countered that Republican GOP Gov. Thomas Kean was re-elected by a landslide in New Jersey, and said the "significant thing" was GOP control of the State Assembly for the first time since 1972. "We won two out of three," he said.

Kean himself said he told Reagan in a phone call that he wanted to make New Jersey's new GOP coalition a model for national Republican politics.

"I want to send a message to Washington that the Republican Party can do whatever it wants to do. It includes all the people in its plans," said Kean.

The president celebrated his 1984 reelection anniversary with a speech to party officials and campaign workers in which he said the GOP has a "commanding lead" in polls that gauge support of 18-to-24-year-old voters. "We hold a lead, in other words, on the years ahead," he said, without mentioning the results in Virginia and New Jersey.

Leaders of both parties had agreed in advance that New Jersey and Virginia were the key battlegrounds as they looked ahead to the 1986 congressional elections, with the GOP looking for signs of a nationwide Republican realignment and Democrats hoping for a comeback after Reagan's 49-state reelection sweep in 1984.

Kirk called a news conference to say that the Republicans had spent at least $500,000 in a losing effort in Virginia. "The Virginia race was another test by the Republicans of their realignment effort and in that regard... once again they have failed in that test," he said.

Kirk said Democratic defeats in the New Jersey assembly were largely the result of the popularity of Kean, who "conducted himself, I might say, very much like a Democrat."

But Speakes said that in Virginia, the Democratic success was due to the popularity of outgoing Gov. Charles Robb, whom he said often pursues policies "very much like Ronald Reagan... I think the Democratic party in Virginia spent most of their time trying to distance themselves from the national party."

Convicted killer, Newsted, is sentenced to life in prison for slaying in Cedar City

ALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Convicted slayer Norman Lee Newsted was sentenced to life in prison Wednesday for his part in the slaying of a woman in Cedar City, Mo., on the night of May 1984. Newsted, 31, already on Oklahoma's death row for the murder of a Tulsa cab driver, was convicted last Friday of the slaying of a barmaid and two customers in a Playhouse lounge in Cedar City.

Newsted laughed and smiled as he chatted with his attorneys after the sentencing, and how he felt about his life being ended, he said. "All right. Just another day," he said.

MacArthur Wright, Newsted's attorney, praised Baldwin's decision — but still filed a motion for a new trial.

"The sentence was the appropriate sentence," he said. "We are still concerned because it (should have been) murder in the second degree."

In addition to the life term, Baldwin sentenced Newsted to three consecutive terms of five years to life on as many aggravated robbery charges. Further, the judge tacked on three one-year sentences and one indeterminate term for Newsted's use of a firearm in the commission of crime.

Baldwin said Newsted would be remanded to Oklahoma authorities following completion of post-trial motions.

In passing sentence, Baldwin said that while Newsted was a party to the slayings, he "does not appear to be the one who killed the people with the shots he fired."

The defense maintained throughout the trial that another man, Douglas Kay, fired the fatal shots, and that Newsted, at first, had only wounded one of the victims with a bullet from a .25-caliber handgun.

After more than three weeks of testimony, the trial's penalty phase recessed abruptly on Tuesday. Iron County Attorney Scott Thorley ended his final summation mid-stream and left the podium after Baldwin admonished him to stop rebutting mitigating circumstances that hadn't yet been presented by defense attorneys.

"It's very clear from the bulk of the testimony from both sides that the actual murders were committed by Kay," Wright said.

Newsted was found guilty by a six-man, six-woman jury of three counts of first-degree murder in the deaths of Patricia Fred, Robert Bull and Ronald Schmidt, and also was convicted of three counts of aggravated robbery.

In earlier testimony, Newsted, of Las Vegas, Nev., said he shot one man, later identified as Schmidt, in the arm. But he told the judge Kay had taken his gun and pumped at least three shots into all the victims.

Asked about an earlier statement to police that "everything would've been okay if Doug hadn't gone crazy and started shooting everybody," Newsted said that was correct. "I wouldn't be here now for murder (otherwise)," he said. "I'd be here for armed robbery."

State Building Board asks Bangerter for $108 million for improvements

ALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The State Building Board has asked Gov. Bruce Bangerter for approval of $108 million in construction funds for new state buildings and improvements to existing facilities.

The governor received a tentative list of projects Tuesday from the board. The board will meet next week to formally approve their recommendations.

Leading the construction list is a near $1.4 million payment toward removal of radon at Utah State's main building, the old Utah State Capitol building in Salt Lake City. The board will meet next week to formally approve their recommendations.

Other projects include a new $1.4 million building for the Utah State Office of Management and Enterprise Services in Salt Lake City.

The board also recommended a new $1.4 million building for the Utah State Office of Management and Enterprise Services in Salt Lake City.

said Patrick Hayes, assistant director of the Utah Division of Facilities Construction and Management.

Further, the board has asked the Legislature for $498,000 in supplemental appropriations to match federal monies needed to keep the tailings removal project ahead of schedule.

Second on the list is a $4.6 million computer center planned for construction north of the State Office Building in Salt Lake City. Nearly $1.4 million is for parking at Utah Technical College in Salt Lake County.

The fate of other projects depends on whether the legislature decides to bond.

THE BYU STORY

A Look at America's Largest Church-owned University

"This thoroughly documented foray into some of the tensions, conflicts, and absurdities which have bedeviled the history of BYU provides a balance to previous accounts of the 'Lord's University'. The issues examined reflect the attempt to have the 'Y' serve two masters — critical inquiry and religious certainty, and the authors have succeeded in communicating the difficulties inherent in such an undertaking."

Frederick S. Buchanan, Associate Professor of Educational Studies, University of Utah

"A remarkable piece of research that has produced an amazing battery of instructive and interesting facts."

Sterling M. McMurrin, Former U.S. Commissioner of Education, Author of The Theological Foundations of the Mormon Religion

"The authors have provided many interesting details, making the book enjoyable and honest. I read this volume with a great deal of interest."

Caroline Eyring Miner, Class of 1929, co-author of Camilla: A Biography of Camilla Eyring Kimball

Chapters focus on religious education, moral behavior, organic evolution, political philosophy, student organizations and publications, athletics, the arts, and research. The authors both graduated from BYU in 1980.

Romanian jumps ship; held by U.S. Immigration

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Romanian merchant seaman has jumped ship and is in the custody of U.S. immigration agents, a Justice Department spokesman said Wednesday.

Patrick Korten, deputy director of public affairs, said he could not identify the seaman or provide details of the circumstances surrounding his leaving the vessel near Jacksonville, Fla.

But Korten did say that the man "isn't going anywhere until they have questioned him thoroughly in the right language."

Korten evidently was alluding to the case of Soviet seaman Miroslav Medvid, who Reagan administration officials have said has indicated he wants to return to the Soviet Union after twice jumping off his ship near New Orleans.

Herds of wild elephants ruin crops in Lampung

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Herds of wild elephants have destroyed hundreds of acres of crops in the southern Sumatra province of Lampung, the newspaper Sinar Harapan said Wednesday.

The newspaper said the elephants emerge at nightfall from their habitat in the Way Sambat National Park in central Lampung, into the fertile land, eating or damaging rice, maize and banana crops.

The newspaper gave no exact figures of the damage done.

Authorities told the daily Tuesday they would try to catch the wild animals and tame them or drive them back to the jungle.

The government recently announced that elephants, which are protected by law, could be caught for private use or for export.

OPINION

Pres. Kimball's love continues despite absence

It is somewhat fitting that on a night when politicians were nervously awaiting election results to see who would be the next "leaders," we had cause to remember one of the greatest leaders the world has ever known, President Spencer W. Kimball.

The work will continue, the church will still flourish, but a true leader and disciple of Christ will definitely be missed.

The name, Spencer W. Kimball, means different things to different people. He was an earthly example of heavenly love. He was an eternal spirit confined to a mortal body. For years he astounded his physicians with his pace and his "Do it" attitude.

UNIVERSE OPINION

There are millions of stories of President Kimball's good nature and his drive to do good for his fellow man. From helping stranded motorists, to extending the missionary program of the church, his influence was present in all our lives.

He may be remembered for the number of temples built during his term, his emphasis of the missionary program or for receiving the revelation giving the priesthood to all worthy males, but more than that he will be remembered for his spirit, his direction and his love.

Most BYU students will remember President Kimball because he was the church's president during our adolescent years. As we grew up, we always knew of President Kimball's concern for the youth of the church. This man, whose presence was not imposing, spoke with power and definite direction so no man, woman or child could misunderstand his message.

His love for BYU was made clear each time he spoke to BYU students or attended a BYU athletic event. He had an abbreviated stay as a student at BYU in 1917, staying only one week because of his call to serve in World War I. In September of 1979 he said, "Brigham Young University was established for the purpose of helping men and women to learn all that the world has to teach, but to do so in a setting infused with faith in the continuing concern of God for man, in the redemptive sacrifice of Christ, and in the capacity and willingness of the Lord to speak to us today, both through the quiet whisperings of the spirit which come to us as individuals and through the words of leaders he has called to give guidance."

Worldwide, members of the church made great sacrifices to see the prophet when he was nearby. His picture is displayed in living rooms throughout the world. His phrase, "Do it," was translated enough times to make it a global motto for church members.

He accepted his calls as an apostle and prophet with humility. "In The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, one takes the place to which one is duly called, which place one neither seeks nor declines, and he lives by that precept," he said.

President Kimball endured many trials and struggles throughout his lifetime, and his last years were perhaps his most challenging. Still his spirit could be felt as he attended conference and as the mission of the church progressed. His endurance and cheerful attitude served as an inspiration to all church members.

His influence isn't as tangible as a statistic. He not only preached love, he demonstrated it. His life was replete with service to others. He was truly dedicated to serving God.

His willingness to display love was made clear in his address to BYU students when he said: "Love one another. I look forward to the reunion one day with my parents, a loving mother I lost 73 years ago and a faithful father by whose bedside I sat 55 years ago. I have often felt their continuing concern for my welfare and I know from my own experience how sweet the love of family can be. And I'm also grateful for the larger family of which you are all a part, my brothers and sisters in Christ. I love you, in all of your variety and in spite of your human failings. I know that the Lord loves you more, much more than is in our mortal capacity to love."

Without a doubt, his reunion with his parents and the Saviour is sweet.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Wrong poison

Editor: In all our years at BYU we have considered The Daily Universe to be a publication of journalistic integrity beyond reproach. However, as Masters of Accountancy students, we must take exception to the glaring lie that was printed in the Nov. 5 edition. Jennifer Johnson's editorial claimed that caffeinated Coke was available in the MACE lounge. We emphatically deny this unfounded allegation (It's Pepsi). Come on, get the facts straight.

Jennifer, we admire your ability to uncover the significant stories that have a profound impact on all members of the university community. You definitely have your finger on the pulse of Provo. You must also be commended for the courage and integrity you displayed as you boldly uncovered this shocking story of graft and corruption at BYU. You should be on 60 Minutes. Mike Wallace would love you. To congratulate you on your prowess as an investigative reporter, the students of the accounting department would like to invite you over to the MACE lounge for a free Pepsi.

Unfavorable light

The cartoon appearing in Monday's Daily Universe was done in extremely poor taste. It speaks poorly of Benson's character to cast men of high esteem and personal integrity in such an unfavorable light.

Serious problem

Editor: I was very excited to read Ms. Johnson's Nov. 5 editorial on coffee drinks here at BYU. Certainly her courageous efforts have unfolded a serious problem, not only here at this university, but around the world as well. In fact, so important did I consider the editorial that I forwarded copies of it via express mail to Secretary of State Schultz, President Bush, the Afghanistan Freedom Fighters and the Ethiopian government. Certainly they will read it and sigh a breath of relief, realizing the insignificance of their problems compared to those we so bravely confront.

I am proud that we at BYU are proclaiming to the world what are actually the important issues of our day. Thank you Ms. Johnson, thank you. You demand the respect of all people everywhere for yet another moving editorial. May we never forget that the campus is our world!

Good coverage

Editor: On behalf of the Human Rights committee I would like to thank you for your coverage of the Symposium (Oct. 21-25). We greatly appreciate your support.

Perfect purging

Editor: After reading Shannon Stokes' letter to the editor and listening to the countless "knowledgeable" BYU football fans last week, I came to the conclusion that they were right... Bosco should have been replaced in the UTFC game. I don't feel, however, that this purging should stop with Bosco. Any student that doesn't attain a 4.0 GPA should be expelled from BYU and another should take their place. Similarly, God should destroy anyone who sins and send another spirit down to inhabit that body. In this way we will have the perfect football team, school and world that Ms. Stokes and her kind will be proud of.

Not all art is art

Editor: During the past few weeks there has been a great deal of attention given to the art in the Harris Fine Arts Center. It is unfortunate, however, that the subject of that attention was vandalism. Since then, and maybe because of that attention, another issue has arisen that I feel needs to be addressed. That is the quality of the "art" (if I may use the word so loosely) that is being displayed in the main gallery.

First we were favored to look at the work of someone who obviously did quite well in metal-working class. Here we were shown 15 variations of the same theme; shiny metal welded into different shapes. Don't get me wrong, I did enjoy one or two of the sculptures, but when they all look the same, there is no reason to display 15. Now when you walk into the main gallery, you will be met by a lot of tree branches stuffed into chicken wire palisades held up by fishing line. Come on folks! It is time to realize that the king does not have on any clothes. No one wants to say anything because they are afraid that they will appear not to be cultured or intelligent.

Stop lowering the integrity of art by pretending that anything and everything that can fit into a gallery is art.

Club defense

Editor: This is the first time in my five years at BYU that I have written a letter, but I feel that someone should stand up for the social clubs which have been under attack lately. The Nov. 5 letter of Drew Page was simply unfair. I'll admit that Page has a legitimate complaint, but it's not fair to lump all the social (service) clubs together. They are hardly homogeneous. Many clubs, such as the one I belong to, have no pledge or rush activities at all. Official membership requires only the payment of a nominal dues, and anyone is welcome to an activity whether they are a dues-paid member or not.

Many people are not comfortable in the "normal" social scene of the BYU wards. The social clubs provide a more relaxed atmosphere and a smaller group of people. Most clubs are organized around a common interest, so it's easier to strike up a conversation and easier to establish friendships and even romances. The clubs provide variety and interest at a university that is sometimes depressingly colorless.

It is unfortunate that, as is so often true, the actions of a few have led to the unfair persecution of many.

Abusive Aggies

Editor: As you loyal fans come to Logan this weekend for your annual dose of uncalled-for physical and mental abuse, please remember that there are a lot of us among the drunken "Aggie" crowd who do not wish to participate in such obnoxious behavior. We are not at all vocal because we fear repercussions from the rest of the studentbody. Please have sympathy for us as you look through the USU student section and find us quiet spectators sitting in the crowd with umbrellas to shield us from the rain. We are just as embarrassed of crowd as we are of our football team.

Ticket praise

Editor: I would like to thank the people who ran the basketball ticket distribution system this year. Compared to the football ticket lottery this was like a breath of fresh air. Giving us true blue FANatics an opportunity to sit in line for the tickets is without a doubt one of the smartest things that the ASE athletics office has done this year.

Return the Jedi

Giving us true blue FANatics an opportunity to sit in line for the tickets is without a doubt one of the smartest things that the ASE athletics office has done this year.

Pigskin fairness

Editor: Many alumni recall BYU football games with fondness. Many of current BYU students will not. These memories because they get to the games. It is unfair to deny students not to be able to attend any or all the games.

Public must know the truth

Winston Churchill said, "The worst crime is not to tell the truth to the public."

In a recent guest focus in The Daily Universe, a major point was made that the United States had nuclear superiority over Russia.

Senator Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., one of the most knowledgeable of our congressmen on these matters, sent a letter to President Reagan on March 5, 1982, in which he wrote, "We are not just a little behind the Russians, we are devastatingly behind them."

I think the time has come when we have to quit fooling around and trying to lie to the American people."

A major argument set forth by those opposed to the SDI program is that it will cause an imbalance in the MAD program. They suggest that improving defense will accelerate attempts to improve offensive weapons. Has this philosophy in any way been considered as a valid reason by the Russians to stop their continuous effort to construct defensive systems? "Experts" on Russian military programs have asked this question: "Why, instead of leaving their entire population, plus their land-based missiles and bombers unprotected from nuclear attack, as we have done, the Soviets have already invested over $100 billion to protect their people and their military from any missiles we might launch in response to an attack by them?"

Other U.S. "experts" state: "They spend three to five times what we do on laser research. They have the only space-related kinetic energy kill system in the world. Their co-orbital anti-satellite system has been operational for 13 years. The United States will not have an ASAT until later in this decade."

What type of orientation does the Soviet military have about the possibility of a nuclear war? Let them speak themselves in this quotation taken from the Soviet General Staff publication Soviet Military Strategy.

"The Soviet government... and their armed forces must be ready primarily for a world war... the armed forces of the Soviet Union... must be prepared above all to wage war under conditions of the mass use of nuclear weapons... the preparation and waging of just such a war must be regarded as the main task of the theory, military strategy and strategic leadership... Create the advantage over the enemy in nuclear weapons... methods of their use is the most important task in building up of the armed forces in peacetime as well during the course of war."

Our country is constantly being inundated with vague propaganda from communist sources. Billions of dollars are spent to disinform us, to undermine our religious beliefs, our moral standards and our government. To what extent can we trust communists and in any way place our future in their hands? Let them themselves give us a clear picture of what to expect from communism in terms of honesty in these words by him in 1921. "To tell the truth, petty bourgeois hatred, whereas for us to lie is justified our objectives. Capitalists the world over and their governments will close their eyes on these activities and become blind as well as deaf mutants."

Every American must carefully evaluate what he is ordered in terms of whether it strengthens and benefits country or whether, instead, it aids and strengthens cause of our enemy, communism, whose major concern is to destroy us.
